

I strongly oppose the proposal to allow corporations to own larger proportions of the media in communities. There has been no evidence that this improves anything save the profits of the corporate owners, while there is evidence that this drives out diversity in programming.